Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 10 Nov 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A grey and damp start, but drier and brighter.

Today:
A rather grey start with some patchy rain across the south of the area. The rain should ease by lunchtime, allowing skies to brighten up. The ebst of the afternoon susnhine will be across Cumbria. Mild for all once again. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
Clear spells and isolated showers this evening, the becoming generally dry during the early hours. Turning chilly and rather foggy by morning where skies remain clear. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Thursday:
Any fog will only slowly clear through Thursday morning, and areas of low cloud will give the odd spot of drizzle in places throughout the day. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Changeable and windy on Friday with some outbreaks of rain. Settling down again on Saturday with some sunny spells. Cooler and breezy on Sunday but mainly dry with some sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.